Sky Army in Gains

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP)—A continuous stream of sky-borne reinforcements and supplies was reported flowing into Holland today, and supreme headquarters announced the First Allied Air Army had won Round 1 in the battle to lay open the flat lands of northern Germany for an invasion around the Siegfried line.

Lt. Gen. Dempsey's British Second Army plunged forward from its bridgehead across the Schelde-Meuse canal. Its co-ordinated offensive aimed at linking up with the bridgeheads established by the air army—the Seventh Allied Army thrown into the battle of the western front.

(A BBC front report said the Second Army had "broken clean through the tough crust" in a seven-mile advance inside Holland, reaching a point only five miles from Eindhoven where some of the air army was reported to have landed.)

Spearheads of the first U. S. Army which had pierced the Siegfried Line below encircled Aachen held on grimly to positions 20 to 30 miles from the Rhine city of Cologne, turning back waves of hoarsely screaming Germans making shoulder-to-shoulder "psychological" attacks.

Twenty thousand more Germans surrendered en masse in a mid-France pocket below the Loire.

Lt. Gen. Patton's Third Army along the Moselle in eastern France hammered eastward into the Vosges from Nancy and northward behind the fortress city of Metz after throwing back repeated German counterattacks.

The Seventh Army from the Mediterranean threw the Germans out of Lure, 17 miles due west of Belfort in the gap leading to the upper Rhine frontier of Germany, and were slugging their way north of Pont de Roide toward Montbelard down the last 15 miles to Belfort from the south. The Paris radio said without confirmation that the Seventh Army had entered Belfort 30 miles from the Rhine.

Below Switzerland Lt. Gen. Patch's Seventh Army drove northeast 11 miles from captured Modane at the entrance to the Mt. Cenis tunnel into Italy, and reached Lansle-Bourg, less than five miles from the Italian border.

Announcing only that the airborne landings in Holland were "going well," Gen. Eisenhower kept a security blackout on this latest blow.

But the Germans said unbroken streams of Allied sky trains were carrying reinforcements and supplies into the original landings made by Lt. Gen. Brereton's winged striking force.

"One of the greatest air-borne operations in military history," as it was described by Brereton, was said by the Germans to be centered at Nijmegen, three miles from the Dutch-German border and 12 miles northwest of Kleve where the Siegfried Lie glorified by Hitler is reported to end.

Other landings reported by the enemy radio were at Arnhem, 10 miles north of Nijmegen, where a bridgehead would have been established across the famous water barriers of Holland—the Waal river and the Neder Ryn (Rhine).

While these reported landings

MOB LYNCHES FASCIST AT ROME TRIAL

By GEORGE ERIA

ROME, Sept. 18 (AP)—An Italian mob dragged the former Roman jail director, Dr. Donato Carretta, from a courtroom today and beat him to death in the waters of the Tiber.

Mobsters strung his body feet-first from a window in the prison from which, the prosecution declared, he had turned 56 hostages over to the Germans.

Caretta was to have testified for the state in the trial of Pietro Caruso, former police chief in Rome. The growing mob prompted Allied military government officers to postpone Caruso's trial.

Caretta was seized when the decision was announced. He was mauled, beaten, thrown into the Tiber and finally killed by men who pursued him in a rowboat and beat him with oars.

Caruso, police chief during the final four months of German occupation of Rome, is the first of the accused Italian collaborationists to come before the tribunal for punishment of Fascist crimes.

Dr. Carretta had been scheduled to testify for the government that Caruso had ordered 50 persons turned over by the jailers to be executed by the Germans in the Ardeatina caves as part of 320 Italians killed in reprisal for the bombing of the German SS (Elit Guard) detachment in Rome last March.

A huge crowd, brushing aside the feeble perfunctory resistance of the Italian police, jammed the great hall of the Palace of Justice before the trial was expected to begin.

Their demonstration caused Col. J. R. Pollock, head of the Allied military government police in Rome, to announce that the trial could not proceed.

Two women spotted Caretta and demanded that the police arrest him. When they made no move to comply the crowd dragged him into the square in front of the palace and the lynching followed.

The crowd in the courtroom included many black-dressed widows and mothers of the Ardeatina victims.

Yanks Speed Palau Push

By VERN HAUGLAND

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 18 (AP)—Swift extension of new Army beachheads on Angaur island and Marine gains against heavy Japanese opposition on adjacent Peleliu, reported by the Navy, paced the accelerating American conquest of the southern Palaus.

The 81st (Wildcat) Army Division held the northeast third of Angaur a few hours after infantrymen stormed ashore Sunday, a Pacific Fleet communique reported.

The First Marine Division advanced approximately one-third of a mile Saturday on Peleliu, six miles northeast, against stubborn Japanese resistance.

The Marines, holding the island's southwestern peninsula, were pushing northward beyond the Peleliu airfield.

(William Ewing, a Blue Network war correspondent, said in a flagship broadcast, that the Marines had captured Peleliu's highest hill and consequently the tide had turned definitely in their favor.)

In the Southwest Pacific, American forces reached all their objectives around the perimeter of Morotai island against still negligible Japanese opposition.

Allied aircraft, maintaining unchallenged aerial cover, hammered airdromes on adjacent Halmahera island with a record of 210 tons of bombs. Other planes sank a 3000-ton transport at Dutch Celebes and destroyed two coastal vessels at Ceram.

Jap Wedge Within 110 Miles Of Splitting China in Half

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Japanese today have only a 110-mile gap to close to achieve their objective of splitting China in half.

The gap lies between Yungning, 70 miles east of Kweilin, where the Americans have destroyed their tortuously-built air bases, and Waitsap, 85 miles northwest of Canton.

Balancing this melancholy news was the High Command announcement that the Chinese have recaptured the important Burma road base of Lungling. The Japanese were withdrawing to near Mangshih, 13 miles southwest.

But in the other, more critical sector, a column from the left wing of the Japanese forces advancing toward Kwelin took Yungning, while other invaders knifing across the Kwantung-Kwangsi border from Canton seized Waitsap.

When the 110-mile gap is closed, the Japanese will have a line no matter how tenuous or vulnerable—stretching from Manchuria to the South China sea.

The Japanese dream of a Tokyo to Singapore railroad as a fruit of splitting China. The plan would require an advance to Liuchow at the terminus of the Hunan and Kwangsi railroads, and contact with Japanese forces in French Indo-China. To accomplish this, the Japanese still have a god 350 miles to advance and large sections of destroyed railroad along the long route to rebuild.

Hitler, 10 Planes Set for Long Hop

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (INS)—The Stockholm Tidningen, quoting a "private dispatch," said today all of the 10 Messerschmidt-164 planes used by Hitler and his staff suddenly were prepared Sunday for a long flight.

The dispatch, reported by the OWI, said that each plane was filled with 7400 gallons of fuel.

Gen. Pershing Shows Further Improvement

Rimini Shelled By Warships

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

ROME, Sept. 18 (INS)—Allied naval forces hurled 300 rounds of shells into the Rimini area, Adriatic anchor of the Nazi Gothic line, as British Eighth Army troops drove near to Po valley gateway city.

American, Indian, British and Brazilian ground forces of the Fifth Army battled to the west as British units held a bridgehead eight miles wide across the Marano river.

On the Adriatic coast, Canadian and Greek fighters reached the northeast corner of Rimini air field. To the west, fierce fighting raged for Mt. Labate.

Heavy fighting continued near the San Marino frontier.

Russians Close In on 200,000

MOSCOW, Sept. 18 (AP)—The mounting Russian offensive near Jelgava, 25 miles southwest of Riga, has smothered violent German counter-attacks marked by reckless use of large numbers of Nazi tanks and self-propelled guns, front dispatches said today.

(Berlin broadcasts declared the Russians had advanced to within 14 miles of Riga in a three-day offensive. The drive was aimed at crushing two German armies in Latvia and Estonia estimated at 200,000 men.)

Moscow reports said the Red army was building up the last phase of preparations for the coming assault on every Nazi-held position on the eastern front.

Lake Sees Nazis Smashed Back

By AUSTEN LAKE

ON THE ROAD TO BERLIN (Delayed)—Six hours is eternity in the battle lines, and a scant six hours ago the French farm hamlet where I now am and the surrounding country for 10 miles deep were in German hands. The Krauts did not retire gracefully. They were rocked back on their heels by this division of bearded, dust covered doughboys whom I last met in Cornwall, Eng.

There are very few left whom I knew. The general's aide, who chaperoned me in search of New Englanders last winter, is dead by shrapnel. Col. L., my genial host at regimental H. Q., is in an English hospital with one eye shot out. The grisly list is long.

This division will rank high in history when the archives of this war are complete. I may not name them now for reasons which the inscrutable wisdom of Washington only knows.

The effect of war's recessional on this little town is that of a passing tornado. Down the hill lie the festering, fly swarmed corpses of eight German ammunition horses, whose bellies are ballooned under the hot sun.

They have not yet begun to contaminate the air with their putrid stench, as do thousands of other mortifying farm animals which strew the fields further back an unforgettable stench which reeks like a vast glue factory. The body of one cow lies perched in a tall oak tree where a demolition bomb lodged its body.

I went up with a supporting battalion of infantry along a place where signs "Mines not cleared" appeared and where engineers were already engaged in the risky job of searching them out with electric detectors that look not unlike carpet sweepers.

German equipment lay everywhere. Smouldering Mark IV tanks lurched in wayside ditches, some with their hatches still closed and hiding their grisly contents (even the unquenchable curiosity of the doughboy and his love for souvenirs did not try to pry into these morbid secrets).

Trucks laden with boxes and bales still smoked where our air strafers caught them—a German rolling kitchen (kulosche-konone) had vats of lukewarm lentil soup.

Two soldiers with red cross brassards on their arms trundled a French civilian on a stretcher, his face waxen, his bandaged chest motionless. A mobile surgical team worked on seriously wounded, who were queued in waiting lines of stretchers, some silent, some whimpering piteously.

War's four sinister horsemen had passed this way and left their wake of pestilence and death. I came to an uprooted orchard where there was a circle of curious GI's, shaggy, bearded and with red-rimmed eyes.

They were watching a group of ebony black Negroes sitting on fallen tree trunks and wearing ragged odds and ends of civilian clothes. They were bigger framed and fiercer looking than our southern types but the GI's couldn't persuade themselves that these blacks didn't speak English.

"Where yus all from?" a soldier kept inquiring. But the Negroes spoke only a patois French. Senegalese tribesmen who had been captured by the Germans and recaptured by the Americans.

I spoke briefly to one in my feeble French and he said wistfully: "Peutetre j'allerai chez moi, bientot, hein?" ("Maybe I

Thousands Halted By Big Bus Strike

Thousands of South Shore residents, many of them shipyard and war plant workers, were stranded without transportation today as bus and street car operators of the Quincy division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway joined the strike of Melrose division drivers.

The 135 Melrose division operators walked out yesterday in spite of the fact union leaders had arranged to meet with Gov. Saltonstall today in an effort to forestall the walkout voted by the 1800 drivers in a National Labor Relations Board election.

Night shift workers on the Quincy division decided to join the walkout but some day drivers, unaware of their action reported for duty but in insufficient number to handle the huge volume of traffic and did not work.

The division serves Quincy, Braintree, Hingham, Weymouth, Milton, Randolph, Holbrook and Brockton, and the tie-up left throngs dependent on the service stranded.

Additional thousands were hard put for transportation north of Boston by the walkout of the Melrose division, which serves, Melrose, Everett, Malden, Arlington, Woburn, Wakefield, Reading, Stoneham, Lawrence, Lowell and Haverhill.

The Boston & Maine Railroad put extra cars on all commuter trains between Lawrence and Boston and reported a large number of extra passengers, most of them short-haul customers between local stations on the line.

South Shore school children were forced to walk to school and hundreds were late.

In Quincy a police cruiser car equipped with a loud speaker toured the city informing school pupils of the strike and telling them they had better walk to school.

Hundreds collected in Quincy sq., unaware of the strike, and were forced to devise other means of getting to work or to school.

William H. Collins, general manager of the Fore River plant, estimated that some 8000 employes were dependent on the Eastern Massachusetts lines for transportation but that only a few hundred of the day-shift workers reported late because of the tieup.

He said the company had no way of determining what effect the walkout would have on the 3 p. m. change of shifts.

Many workers, learning of the strike, used their scant A rations to drive to work and there was a noticeable increase in the number of cars in the plant's parking area.

Collins said other workers managed to "thumb" rides or double up with neighbors who were driving to work.

The first two scheduled runs on the Quincy division at 5 and 5:10 a. m. were made but the cars were recalled after finishing their trips and the walkout became complete just as the early morning rush started.

Officials of both the Quincy and Melrose locals declared the strikes were "unauthorized" and urged the drivers to return to work.

Strike leaders said the walkout was in protest against War Labor Board action in approving a 2½ cent per hour wage increase after deliberating for 15 months over a mutual agreement between the union and company for a 6-cent an hour raise.

Saul Walien, regional WLB chairman, retorted that 11 months of the alleged 15 months "delay" was due to failure of the parties involved to submit a case for WLB approval.

He said the agreement was reached on June 2, 1943, but the union did not submit an application for approval until April 17, 1944, after WLB had approved a bonus plan for a Washington, D. C., transit company.

Walien said the application was approved by his office and forwarded to the National Board for review last June 1, where it was held up pending a study by Stabilization Director Vinson of the entire bonus policy of the transit industry in the United States.

He said the modified bonus plan was approved on Sept. 14.

Strikers remained outside the Quincy carbarn early today and jeered and cat-called at operators reporting for work.

The vote of the Quincy division to go on strike was taken at a mass meeting—not an official union meeting—which first convened at the Quincy carbarn at midnight and then adjourned to Beston's Gymnasium in Quincy sq.

About 80 members attended and the vote to strike was unanimous. The strike action was announced at 2:30 a. m., and the strike became effective at 3:15 a. m., when the last street car pulled into the Quincy carbarn.

In taking the midnight strike vote, the Quincy local became the only other division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. to join with the 135 operators in Melrose who walked out Sunday.

A survey made by the Boston Evening American disclosed that operators reported as usual this morning and bus and street cars were operating as scheduled in all communities serviced by the company's divisions in Lynn, Salem, Norwood, Lowell, Lawrence, Fall River, Taunton, Haverhill and Brockton.

Strike of the Melrose division workers left 11 communities without bus or street car service, stranding thousands of Boston communities, school pupils, shoppers and war workers. Buses and cars were tied up in Everett, Malden, Melrose, Arlington, Woburn, Wakefield, Reading and Stoneham. Transportation to and from Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill was affected in part.

Bricker, Truman Praise GI Bill at Legion Parley

By JAMES F. McENANEY

CHICAGO, Sept. 18—The GI Bill of Rights, forced through Congress after one of the most determined stands in legislative history, was praised highly here today by the rival major party candidates for Vice-President at opening sessions of the American Legion's 26th annual convention.

Democratic Sen. Truman of Missouri and Republican Gov. Bricker of Ohio outlined from the same platform their ideas on giving security to World War II veterans.

Among those on hand for the opening session were all of Massachusetts' 65 delegates and alternates, including Michael J. Kelleher, chairman of the national defense committee, and former State Coms. John Daley, Richard Cunningham and Harold Redden.

Called to speak first, Sen. Truman declared the GI Bill of Rights is going to prevent the tragic mistakes under which veterans of the last war suffered, and guaranteed a just and lasting treatment.

Bricker said jobs could be provided for our returning heroes only "By Freeing business and industry from their shackles and releasing the productive forces of this country."

He stated returning servicemen were entitled to every consideration, that the GI bill was a good beginning, and that the deepest hope of the current fighters was for decent, honorable, continuing employment.

"What I want to bring home to this great organization is our responsibility to help see that these discharged soldiers who have done our fighting for us are properly placed in industry, in farming, in small business," Truman set forth in his prepared address.

"I particularly want to emphasize the small business angle. Small business is the bulwark of free enterprise."

The Missourian termed the GI bill the most comprehensive servicemen's relief legislation ever passed in the history of this country and detailed its provisions for education, training, loans and other features.

Bricker, in his prepared speech, submitted that the job problem could be met if a climate of opportunity were created. He added:

"Our economic society is simply paralyzed by the restraints and shackles that are fastened on it."

Bricker also declared, "All veterans are entitled to have their jobs back and no individual, group or organization dare deny that right."

Lana Discards His Ring As Crane Battles Bey

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18—"I'll Be Loving You Always" long has been the theme son of wealthy young Stephen Crane—through both annulment and divorce from screen star Lana Turner—but today a sour note had crept in following new film colony fisticuffs involving the young Turkish actor, Turhan Bey.

Stevie, divorced by Lana less than a month ago, and Bey, a star in "Dragon Seed," traded punches after the latter had escorted the lovely Lana to a Hollywood house party.

Stephen Crane

Both men retired to the garden for a bit of fancy swinging, according to several stories of the affair, but both walked away under their own steam when others pulled them apart.

When the tug-of-war was over, Crane exhibited a bruised eye and Bey sported a few face scratches.

But the cruelest dig of all was handed out by Lana, who tossed away the diamond ring the young New York and Chicago broker gave her when they eloped two years ago. The party broke up with Crane still searching shrubbery for the ring.

The troubles of Lana and Stevie have made headlines ever since their runaway marriage. That one was annulled just a few months before she gave birth to their daughter a year ago last July. She claimed he had wed her before his divorce from Carol Crutz, Indianapolis society girl, became final.

But just before the baby, little Cheryl Christina Crane, was born, the famous sweater girl and her husband became reconciled and were wed.

This one lasted until recently, and during a period when Crane saw a bit of service in the Army.

Always he has voiced his love for Lana. Once he landed in a Hollywood hospital after taking an overdose of sleeping tablets and running his automobile over a cliff in the stormy days in between the annulment and remarriage.

Neither Crane nor Bey are the only men in Lana's much-publicized Hollywood career. She once was the wife of band leader Artie Shaw, whom she divorced in 1941.

Caution Against Argentine Trade

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (INS)—American business men are being cautioned against making investments in Argentina, it was learned at the State Department today.

An official of the department described this as an informal type of sanction which is being carried out with no official announcement, but merely through answers to business men seeking information.

The inquiries have come in great number as a result of secretary of State Hull's repeated denunciation of the "Fascist" government in Buenos Aires, and especially since the recent action of blocking movement of gold from the United States to Argentina.

Urge New Food Allotment Plan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—A proposal for a food allotment plan to get some 2,100,000 tons of war-accumulated surpluses into the homes of low income groups was revived in Congress today by Sen. Aiken (R.) of Vermont.

Object is to assure availability for one year to all members of families with incomes of $1400 or less a diet equivalent to at least 70 per cent of what has been found to be the basic food need of the average person. It would be done with free coupons, with which recipients could get food at stores.

Two Men Drown When Boat Tips

EAST HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 18. Police searched the Connecticut river here today for William Cunningham, 47, and his brother-in-law, Lewis Barfield, 35, both of Westfield, Mass., presumably drowned when a rowboat overturned a short distance from shore.

Rescued were Ralph W. Ray, 47, and Harry Newcomb, 41, both of Springfield, other members of the party.

The two rescued men said they had been cruising the river in a launch and were coming ashore after mooring the larger craft when the rowboat capsized.

Divers Aid Search For Lost Lightship

With the hurricane toll at sea now nearing 400 victims, divers were called today to search the shoals off Cuttyhunk for the missing Vineyard Sound Lightship and her crew of 12.

Coast Guard officers reported the famous iron vessel presumably lost just a short time after the Navy announced the sinking of three craft, a destroyer and two Coast Guard patrol boats, in hurricane-tossed seas that reached as high as 100 feet.

The area now under inspection is near Sow and Pigs reef, where the lightship regularly is stationed.

Lost somewhere in New England waters was the USS destroyer Warrington, while the Coast Guard craft Jackson and Bedloe went down off the Virginia capes.

Navy authorities reported some of the crews of each vessel had been rescued but that loss of life aboard the Warrington had been heavy. The ship carries a normal complement of 250 men, but is believed to have wartime strength of 300 officers and men.

The new stories of disaster at sea came as stricken New Bedford, Fairhaven and Cape Cod were resuming communications that had been silent since the hurricane hit with such devastating force early Friday.

Food and refrigeration still formed the big problem in a score of communities from Provincetown to the canal, with shipments of beef and groceries going through today for the first time since Thursday night.

The damage ashore today was in the expert hands of soldiers from Camp Edwards and state and city emergency crews all of whom labored to prevent looting, get supplies and food to the homeless and clear the debris that still is left.

Power and telephone companies sent down extra crews to restore light, heat and communications to hospitals, dairy and food refrigeration centers, and thousands of homes.

Workers found more damage than had previously been reported in the sections of Harwich, Dennisport, West Dennis, Bass River, West Yarmouth and Osterville. In some of these sections whole cottages had disappeared completely, and large summer homes lay in heaps of kindling and rubble.

Tree damage throughout the Cape was reported much heavier than in the 1938 hurricane, with the total loss running into the millions of dollars.

Emergency crews found their toughest work in the Sandwich area, where they encountered an almost hopeless mass of huge fallen elm trees. The same condition was true in Yarmouth State and local officials revised their estimate of total damage to the Cape Cod area, placing the figure as high as $30,000,000.

Kathleen Kennedy's Titled Husband Killed

Tragedy struck again today for the former Kathleen Kennedy, when the British War Office disclosed death had come to her husband of hardly four months, the Marquis of Hartington, Capt. William John Robert Cavendish.

It was announced he had been killed in action in France, Sept. 10.

It was the second time within a few weeks that grivous news had come to the 24-year-old bride and her parents, former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy.

Kathleen's brother, Lt. Joseph Kennedy, Jr., U. S. N., was killed last month and she came here from London to join the bereaved family at Hyannis.

Her exact whereabouts today were unknown. The young marchioness was at Hyannis as recently as 10 days ago, however.

The only member of the family at Hyannis was Lt. Jack Kennedy, PT boat hero, home on sick leave after being rescued from a remote Pacific island.

Lt. Kennedy was advised of his titled brother-in-law's death by the Boston Evening American. He said no word of the tragedy had been received by the family so far as he knew. They are in New York.

He was shocked to learn of the marquis' death, as was Kathleen's grandfather, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. He, too, was first informed of the news by the American. He said:

"Well, this is war . . . these poor young men at the front!"

Today was the 26-year-old Marquis of Hartington would have succeeded to the Duchy of Devonshire as the elder son of the present Duke.

A younger brother, Lord Andrew Cavendish, now becomes the heir-presumptive. Should the former Kathleen Kennedy bear a son, the infant would become the heir-apparent.

The marquis and his bride met while she was living with her ambassador father in London and serving as his official hostess at times.

As early as 1939 there were persistent reports the Marquis of Hartington was courting the Boston girl, but neither they nor members of their families would confirm reports an engagement was in the offing.

Their marriage May 6 was front page news throughout Europe as well as here.

The marquis and Miss Kennedy were married May 6 in the simplest of ceremonies at the Chelsea, London, register's office. In the course of 10 minutes they became man and wife and she walked forth with him as the Marchioness of Hartington.

She was escorted to the registry by her brother, Navy Lt. Joseph Kennedy, Jr., who was then stationed in England, but who has since been killed in action.

The best man was the Duke of Rutland.

Although the ceremony was brief and simple, a full scale reception followed at the manse of Lady Hambleton. Titles by the score attended. Among them were Lady Astor, Lady Elizabeth Cavendish and Lady Anne Cavendish.

Lady Hambleton was hostess because the town house of the marquis' father, the Duke of Devonshire, had been devastated during the London blitz.

Little Kathleen Kennedy, in a suede crepe frock under a short jacket of brown mink and a hat of blue and pink ostrich feathers, won the admiration of London society.

The marquis' family took her to its bosom and the young couple were regarded as one of the happiest to be joined in wartime London.

Her husband, about six months before the wedding, had tried to launch a political career for himself as a National Conservative candidate from his family seat in West Derbyshire. He was defeated by an Independent.

When the results were announced, the marquis stood on the balcony of Matlock town hall and told the crowd:

"I am going out now to fight for you at the front. After all, unless we win the war there can be no home front."

He had been defeated by a soldier's son, an alderman, to whom he offered congratulations like a soldier before going out to serve as a captain of the Coldstream Guards.

Only Kin to Attend Astor N. Y. Bridal

With no wedding bells, no gawking crowds, and a mere handful of the Four Hundred present, John Jacob Astor, 3d, will be married in New York this afternoon to Miss Gertrude Gretsch, whose name will be a new one in the Social Register.

Bride of John Jacob Astor

They are to have the ceremony in the East 77th st. apartment of her mother, Mrs. Walter Gretsch, with only members of the immediate families as witnesses.

John J. Astor

It will be a wedding in sharp contrast to the elaborate ceremony that highlighted the 1934 season in Newport when Astor was married to Ellen Tuck French of Dedham. She divorced him in Reno last year and obtained a settlement of $1,000,000 from the Astor fortune.

It hardly made a nick in the personal bankroll of John Jacob Astor 3d. His new bride becomes the wife of one of the world's richest men.

Astor's best man will be his half-brother, Lt. John Henry Dick of the Army Air Forces, son of the late Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte.

Sole attendant for the bride will be Miss Margaret Gordon of Green Farms, Ct. Miss Gretsch will be given in marriage by her uncle, Frederick Gretsch.

The wedding gown will be of shell-pink satin, according to society wedding style scouts. Their breathless reports picture it as having a long line bodice with a heart-shaped neckline and full skirt with short train. The bridal veil is to be of Brussels applique lace.

2 Eloping Wives Seek Divorces

Two elopements to Seabrook, N. H., in 1941 ended on the rocks in Salem Probate Court today when the wives sought uncontested divorces from Judge John A. Costello. Both cases were taken under advisement.

Mrs. Charlotte M. Dole, 26, of Maple st., Danvers, testified that James G. Dole, of Georgetown, shook her and called her vile names the day after their elopement because she told her sister of the marriage. She said he left her for good last October after he had beaten her on several occasions.

Mrs. Helen A. Krzywicki, 26, of Salem, said she hadn't seen her husband, Stanley, since July, 1941, a few weeks after their elopement and asked for a decree on grounds of desertion.

War Worker Dies In 3-Story Fall

Toppling from a third story bedroom window, Francis Keane, 58, of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, was killed today in a 35-foot plunge.

The victim, a machinist at an East Boston war plant, was found by a passer-by who summoned police. He was pronounced dead at City Hospital.

Amnesia Victim Has $535 in Bills

Mrs. Helen Whyte, of Winthrop, Me., was en route to Boston today after being notified that a man identified as her father had been found wandering in Scollay sq., apparently the victim of amnesia.

Police said he is Sidney H. Kent, 78, of Washington, D. C. He had $535 in bills and papers bearing the name of his daughter in his possession. He told police he must have withdrawn the money from a bank in Washington, but said he could not remember when or how he came to Boston.

WINS COVETED ROLE—A film bit player unknown to movie audiences, 20-year-old Yvonne De Carolo from Vancouver, B. C., today was assured of stardom on the screen, having been chosen to enact the role of Salome in a forthcoming film. Some 20,000 girls from all over the nation were considered for the role.

V-Day to Flow Gas

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (INS)—Civilian gasoline restrictions may be relaxed at the close of the European war, the Petroleum Industry War Council reported today, due to the anticipated substantial reduction in military gasoline requirements.

"Although actual figures on military requirements after the close of the war in Europe are not now available," the industry's committee on petroleum economics said in a survey, "the committee is of the opinion that a substantial reduction in military taking of gasoline will result and that somewhat more gasoline may be available to ease present restrictions."

Police Mourr Sgt. Driscoll

The funeral of Sgt. William E. J. Driscoll of Jay st. station, a member of the Boston police force since 1917, will be held Wednesday with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Gregory's Church, Dorchester, at 9 a. m. He died of a heart ailment at Veteran's Hospital, West Roxbury.

Sgt. W. E. J. Driscoll

Sgt. Driscoll, who lived in Morton st., Dorchester, was a veteran of World War I.

He leaves his wife, Kathryn, and two sons, William H. and Edward A., both serving in the Navy, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Gleason of East Boston, Miss Catherine Driscoll, and Mrs. Louise Courtney, the latter two of Dorchester.

Lt. Jay Gould III, Weds in Hollywood

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal. (AP)—Jennifer Beryl Bruce, 19, daughter of screen actor Nigel Bruce, was married at All Saints' Episcopal Church here to Army Lt. Jay Gould III, grandson of the late financier.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Herbert Smith.

Hillman 'Death Kiss' Cited by Brewster

Sidney Hillman has turned out to be the secret weapon of the Republican party, and everywhere his endorsement has proven to be the political kiss of death for Democratic aspirants for office.

This was the stern indictment by U. S. Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine in declaring before the Massachusetts Franco-American League at Dartmouth that labor had repudiated Sidney Hillman and his Political Action Committee in the Maine election.

Sen. Brewster made the following telling charges:

Labor in Maine decisively rejected the red herring of class antagonism that Sidney Hillman sought to draw across the trail of an all-American electorate.

American Federation of Labor officials of long standing repudiated the Hillman leadership and announced their refusal to be tied to Sidney's chariot wheel for his anticipated triumphal ride down Pennsylvania ave.

The slogan of the campaign aroused old line Democrats as well as Republicans. "A Republican vote is a vote that Sidney Hillman shall not dominate the next Congress of the United States."

In the First Congressional District with 50,000 shipyard workers from Bath to Kittery, the PAC vote was only 20,000. The PAC polled 8000 fewer votes than the Democratic party secured without Sidney Hillman's help two years ago. The Republican vote increased by 8000.

Sidney Hillman would seem to be entitled to the credit for increasing the Republican majority in this district from 10,000 in 1942 to 26,000 in 1944.

will go home soon, eh?")

I asked the circle of U. S. soldiers whether there were any New England men, and eight raised their hands and said: "Woonell?" I called them aside and one advised: "Step high over that German dud or there'll be black borders on your newspaper tomorrow." I did dash gingerly!

forehand. Nothing serious!

The others were Pvt. Charles Ferreira of 197 Main st., Somerset, who strings 'phone wire to the front lines (since D-Day) and got a letter from his mother, Mary, two days ago.

And Cpl. William Dickinson of 98 High st., Taunton, who is sending his wife, Jeanette (Wilbur), the Bronze Star that he got for keeping his lines open during a German counter attack. (He says maybe he'll get home for Christmas.)

And Sgt. Vincent Hunnefeld, of 51 James st., Roxbury, an inveterate souvenir hunter, who offered to give me his pet pair of German field glasses (which I didn't have the gall to accept, doggone it!) and also has a Bronze Star for patching the wires under heavy fire.

And PFC Defranzo, of 421 Barbour st., Hartford, Ct., right across from the site of Ringling's circus fire, and who showed me a news clipping which complimented his mother, Mary, for her part in caring for the injured.

And Pvt. Louis Vacca, of 42 Mortan ave., Medford, who is just back after healing a flesh wound, and wants to resume life with father, Michael's, Fleet Fruit Market.

And Pvt. John F. Marimo of 10 Atwood st., Providence, R. I., who was on his way to an aid station with ailing feet, and whose mail is delayed. (He has only had three letters since he came to France, and from sister, Hilda).

And Cpl Francis Fazzano of 56 Winsor st., Cranston, R. I., a regimental H. Q. non-com., who in civil life was assisting prosecutor to Atty. Gen. John Noland, and says his idea of paradise is the Bacchante room at the Biltmore.

NO COOTIES, BUT—

There are no cooties in this war—the multifarious man eating insect which infested the first AEF. (They culture in straw-filled dugouts, of which there are virtually none in this war) but another vicious pest, unknown to the World War I soldier, is bedevilling the soldiers—chiggers, red, pinpoint midges which drop from the trees and burrow into the flesh. They cause intense smarting and inflammation which must be treated with sulphuric oxide or injections of procaine (local anesthesia).

New Englanders are where you find them in this hodgepodge of humanity. You find them among the bushes, in cow pastures, in the woods. Like mushrooms, you have to hunt for them where it is moist, shady and cool. So on the tree-fringed sides of a hay meadow I found three more.

Pvt. Clifford J. Leblanc, of 45 Regent st., Roxbury, a rifleman, who was rigging a camouflage net over his position, and who used to be a punchpressman for Keystone Manufacturing (J. J. Johnson.)

Pvt. Charles Ferreira
Somerset

Lt. David W. Miley
Hyde Park

And Lt. David W. Miley, of 63 Tacoma st., Hyde Park, who was rounding up his outfit to start back to the lines, and who, though inherently a cleanly man, hasn't had time for a bath in a comperatively long time, or had his shoes off. (He tells wife, Helena (Cronin), he's gonna spend the rest of his life in a bathtub.)

And Cpl. John Belluardo of 191 Abbott ave., Fitchburg, who has the unenviable job of patrolling No Man's Land, and once worked for K. and L. Co. (Kessler and Litzer.)

And that roadside spot where I yelled at a group, "Any New England men there?" and was almost bowled down in a miniature subway jam, and startled helps of "Hello, yes!"

Near the front lines there are only two lanes of traffic—those going in and those coming out. But they paused by courtesy of a lieutenant, Robert V. Yeuell of 120 West Chestnut st., Wakefield, who worked for his father's metal etching company in Malden, and is a neighbor of Dave Egan.

So here was PFC Fred W. Stantial, of 116 St. Stephens st., Back Bay, former head of the Christian Science stores, a Browning Automatic rifleman who told with some glee how he'd polished off two Nazis with his speedgun.

And Cpl. Wallace E. Johnson, of 589 Spruce st., Manchester, N. H., an intelligence non-com, who was taking a pre-med course at St. Anselm's under Prof. Don Kyer, and plans to continue it.

And 2 Lt. Arthur C. Gooselin, of Berlin, N. H., who won a battlefield commission for gallantry. You don't get those for just saying "yes, sir" to generals. He told the Macabre story of how he'd lost his best friend when a Nazi group pretended to surrender, then shot the young officer who went forward to escort them in.

And Cpl. Robert L. Knox, of 22 Newhall st., Lynn, a reconnaissance man who enlisted with the Canadians four years ago, married an English girl, Barbara (Tozer), a school teacher whom he expects to take to his farm in East Ware, N. H.

Then there was the old stone stable where more U. S. anti-tank gunners were billeted while awaiting summons to go into action on the fast receding front.

And there, taking a freshly captured machine gun apart, was Pvt. Hector R. Landry of 233 Broad st., No. Attleboro, who used to make cigarette lighters for Joe Kohler at Evans Case.

And lastly, S-Sgt. Will C. Fardie of 62 Vista ave., Medford, who is engaged to Evelyn Dominico, Jamaica Plain, and intends to buy the ring in Paris.

Morgenthau Faces Quiz in PAC Probe

By DAVID SENTNER
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—The charge that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau impeded the investigation into subversive aspects of the Political Action Committee by refusing to forward requested income tax data concerning certain New Dealers to the House Committee on Un-American Activities will be aired before the committee's forthcoming hearing on the PAC.

Purpose of the request was to check on sources of large funds established in various parts of the country to finance Communist activities in connection with the PAC fourth term campaign.

Congressional investigating committees, when empowered with a presidential executive order, consider it mandatory for the Treasury Department to grant such requests for income tax returns.

In this case, the House un-American activities committee was authorized to obtain such information under executive order No. 9444.

A list of 10 or 12 persons was forwarded to the Treasury Department by the committee, June 20, with a request for their recent income tax returns.

Included was the name of Helen Gahagan Douglas, Hollywood actress and PAC-New Deal sponsored candidate for Congress.

Telephone slips subpoenaed in New York PAC headquarters reveal a direct call to Miss Gahagan in Los Angeles from Sidney Hillman prior to the Democratic National convention.

$325,000 Cash Bequests Made

Outright cash bequests of $325,000, including more than $100,000 to nearly a score of employes, are included in the will of Frederick A. Flood of Brookline, which was on file for probate today in Dedham court. No estimate was given of the value of the estate.

Largest single bequest to an employe was $10,000 to Edward H. Gatch, his chauffeur, but housekeeper, Annie E. McPhie, and his nurse, Dagney M. Hicks, were each left trust funds of $20,000 each.

His secretary, Mary J. Barry of Watertown, was left $5000 and an equal sum was left to another nurse, Lennie E. Carlson of Norwood. The will provided that each employe of his household shall receive $100 for each year of service. Edna Curtis, Mable Geddes and Dagney Mathiesen, employes of Chase & Sanborn Co., were bequeathed $3000 each. Mt. Vernon Congregational Church of Boston receives $25,000.

He left to his nephew, Richard T. Flood of Dedham, $50,000 and his home in Buckminster rd., Brookline, and his niece, Frances E. Thomas of Weston, was given $50,000 and all his property in Hollywood, Fla., while $50,000 was left for the benefit of the children of his nephew and niece.

That's Cruelty!

MISSOULA, Mont., Sept. 18 (AP)—Margaret Bullari sought a divorce, charging mental cruelty. She said that in arguing her husband always switched to a foreign language—and she couldn't stand not knowing what he said.

Dewey Will Speak On Labor's Rights

EN ROUTE TO SEATTLE WITH DEWEY, Sept. 18 (AP) — Ending 10 days of political reconnaisance, Gov. Dewey prepared today for a third major attack tonight on the New Deal, directed at the disputed Democratic hold on the powerful labor vote.

Traveling overnight to Seattle from Spokane, where he spent yesterday as a day of rest, the Republican nominee reworked for the last time a speech Paul Lockwood, his secretary, said would "set forth plainly the measures which need to be taken to restore free collective bargaining and to correct the existing situation in which labor's rights are made subject to political favoritism."

For 10 days since he spoke in Louisville, Ky., the Governor has been more of an information scout than a candidate. Traveling across the continent, he has devoted hours at each stop to pumping local leaders for their ideas.

Tonight, speaking in Seattle's Civic Auditorium, Dewey is expected, in Lockwood's words, to "analyze the position in which American labor finds itself today under the system of overlapping regulations which has been built up by the Washington bureaucracy."

The GOP nominee laid the groundwork for this special labor talk in his opening campaign speech in Philadelphia. Since then he has talked to labor leaders at each stop on his way west. Almost without exception, they have been local officials of the AFL, with few CIO men present.

In most of these conferences, pains were taken to cite Dewey's record on labor legislation in New York State, as well as to obtain information from the conferees on what steps they believed should be taken to improve labor's status.

Gov. Bricker will make a third speech here Saturday evening and then leave for Cleveland, where he is scheduled to deliver an address Sunday.

Gov. and Mrs. Bricker will arrive here from Maine where he is scheduled to speak Friday at Portland and Bangor.

Tickets for the governer's address to the convention are available at the Women's Republican Club, 46 Beacon st., and at the Republican Club of Massachusetts in Hotel Bellevue.

A week after his New England appearance, Bricker will begin a 9250-mile tour covering the Western half of the country. During this tour he will speak in 20 states, opening Oct. 2 in Bowling Green, Ky.

Readers, Prepare Overseas Gifts Now

The deadline is less than a month away now for the mailing of all Christmas packages to servicemen overseas — these packages must be mailed on or before Oct. 15. This means that the generous New Englanders who have enrolled in the Christmas Gifts for Buddies campaign, and those who wish to enroll, should prepare and mail their packages now.

The response to this campaign, sponsored by the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser, has been most heartening, but the three papers are prepared to furnish a further list of overseas men, soldiers and sailors, who may be forgotten on Christmas Day unless a Yuletide package reaches them.

You may enroll now by filling out and mailing the coupon accompanying this article. Within a few days you will receive the name of an overseas lad to whom you may bring happiness and solace on Christmas. But meanwhile, prepare your packages.

Here is a poignant letter from a guy who sent a Christmas package last year. She is Miss Helen R Lackey of Branch ave., Providence, and she writes:

"I am enclosing my 1944 pledge to a buddy, so that you can send me address of one. You might be interested to know that last February I received a nice letter from a soldier who had received my last year's package. My next letter to him was returned marked 'Accidentally Killed.' So I was glad to know he received my package and enjoyed it."

A little 11-year old girl, Eleanor Flemming of Barre, writes this brave little note:

"I am 14 years of age, and am supposed to have started my first year of high school but due to illness I couldn't go. I will be in bed for two months, perhaps more, as a result of having scarlet fever. I know how it feels to have people do something nice for you, so will you please send me the name of some boy overseas, whose Christmas I can make happy."

Christmas packages must not exceed five pounds in weight or 15 inches in length, or 36 inches in length and girth combined. No perishable foods, intoxicants poisons or inflammable materials such as matches and lighter fluids will be accepted.

Each parcel is subject to censorship and should be wrapped in such a way as to be easily opened for inspection. Separate articles should be packed tightly to avoid loss or damage. Sharp pointed or edged instruments should be protected in special wrappings.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 18 (AP) — Neighbors rushed up, pulled 4-year-old Dale Clark out of the burning doghouse. He received painful but not critical burns on the hands and face. No one knew why Dale was in the doghouse, or how it caught fire.

Jewish New Year Sermons Point Hopeful, Happy Days

With services in temples and synagogues, Greater Boston and New England today observed the feast of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year.

Until sundown Tuesday, devout Jews turn from work and devote themselves to prayer and a personal spiritual inventory. Rosh Hashana starts the 10 days of penitence which close on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

Yom Kippur is observed in prayer and fasting, beginning with kol Nidre services on Tuesday evening, Sept. 28. The observance lasts through sundown the following day.

"Through the sorrows of a world at war religious leaders foresaw hopeful and happy days ahead as congregations offered fervent prayers for a speedy and final victory which will bring liberation to all Jews now under Nazi domination.

Rabbi Abba H. Cohen, preaching from the newly-dedicated pulpit of Temple Sinai, Coolidge Corner, Brookline, at New Year's services this morning, asserted "there is enormous progress ahead, spiritually and morally, as well as technologically.

"The American people along with all peoples, we pray, are demanding an end to international gangsterism," he said. "If that can be achieved, then the sacrifices we have made shall not have been made in vain. If we can emerge from this war determined to purge ourselves of economic injustice, of slums, of child labor, of crimes; if we can purge ourselves of racial bigotry and religious cruelty and its anti-Semitism and Jim Crowism; if we can break through the crust of isolationism, then the fires of war will have been turned into creative fires."

Rabbis scheduled special services today for Jewish veterans confined to Chelsea Naval Hospital, the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea, the Marine Hospital in Brighton, and the West Roxbury Veterans' Hospital.

Quebec Secrecy Stuns Reporter

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 - Official efforts at the Roosevelt-Churchill conference in Quebec to keep the press and radio—and hence the public—uninformed about the major issues involved were "unbelievable," William L. Shirer, CBS news commentator and author, declared in his broadcast.

Shirer in his comments about the Quebec conference, which he attended as a special correspondent for CBS, said he was struck by the failure of the two statesmen to keep their respective peoples abreast of the problems they were seeking to solve. He said:

"They had no policy, no machinery, by which they could keep these peoples reasonably well-informed. The people, it seemed to a reporter, were not asking to be informed as to future military decisions or secret diplomatic moves, but they did want to know in a general way what the problems were and in which general direction their elected leaders were taking them.

"To this correspondent at least, who had spent 15 years covering international conferences, the official effort at Quebec, for which the Americans were largely to blame, to keep the press and radio uninformed was unbelievable.

"You would have thought the correspondents were lepers, for they were denied even physical contact with those who, in past conferences, before the President instituted his new system, used to fill them in with background material and thus enable them to give the public as thorough a report as possible.

"It would probably shock the public to know how little the reporters at Quebec learned, not about decisions . . . they weren't asking for informations on decisions, but about the broad issues and policies which will decide our fate for the rest of our lives."

70 Parley Newsmen Escape Rail Crash

THREE RIVERS, Quebec, Sept. 18 Four cars of the Quebec-Montreal train carrying news correspondents who had been covering the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences, were derailed at Red Mills, a few miles east of here yesterday.

The 70 correspondents aboard left the train hurriedly, but so far as could be ascertained, none suffered even minor hurts. All passengers were taken to Three Rivers to await a special train for Montreal.

My wife says the darndest things!

Imagine calling me "a goon". Me—with a private office and a neat blonde to take dictation. Anyway, I listened. When Mary has something on her mind, you listen!... Seems she bought herself a suit at Bond's. Did she rave about the way it fits. And the needlework. And what she calls "luscious woolens". And then, with a twinkle, she wants to know why I'm still paying fancy prices for my clothes. Yes, why!... Did I know a big percentage of Bond suits for men are tailored in Rochester? Did I know how much that means in quality and long wear? Did I know all Bond woolens have blue-blood pedigrees? Did I know Bond's have 81 different sizes and models to insure perfect fit, even for my executive figure? A bit of sarcasm—that crack about "executive figure". But what could I say? I never knew custom quality in ready-for-service suits came so easy. I do—now! But she still says I'm "a goon"—should have worn Bond clothes long ago. And she's right!

$30-a-Day Hotels for GIs Dims Best Foxhole Dreams

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 18 (AP)—Resort hotels here in the land of the sky where patrons have paid $18 to $30 a day are offering returning soldiers a luxury that fades the best dreams they had in the foxholes and slit trenches of the battle fronts.

Four of the hotels—Park Grove Inn, Vanderbilt, Battery Park Inn and Biltmore—have been taken over by the Army as a redistribution center for Army ground and service forces.

Col. Ulric N. James, commanding officer of the center, said it could care for about 3000 veterans a month and is for men from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maine and Massachusetts.

After a 21-day furlough at home, soldiers come to the center for 10 days of relaxation in one of the hotels.

"It's all like a fairy story," said Mrs. Harry Paczynski of Erie, Pa.

Mrs. Paczynski and her husband, a corporal who has been overseas two years, were the first couple to arrive at Grove Park Inn.

They are spending their "first honeymoon" in a $30-a-day room which costs the corporal nothing and only 50 cents a day for his wife, plus a dollar a day for her meals.

Sky Army

apparently were designed to secure the crossings of these two rivers to open the way for a crossing offensive into northern industrial Germany, the Nazis said other landings were made at Tilburg and Eindhoven. Their sky troops would be only 10 to 15 miles beyond British troops striking across the Dutch border.

The Paris radio reported new landings nine miles north of The Hague, near the coast.

At Nijmegen the Allied force would have to hold out against German counterattacks 46 miles north of the nearest bulge in Allied battlelines, and the Germans tried to convince their home population the entire air-borne force had been surrounded and several units wiped out.

But supreme headquarters said landing places were firmly secured barely 300 miles from Berlin and several Dutch towns were captured.

An Allied supporting attack was said by the Germans to have speared up to Neerpelt, 30 miles north of Maastricht, only 12 miles south of Eindhoven.

The landing force apparently was greater than the D-Day airborne attack, but all that was known of its size was that it had been ferried to the dropping points by 1000 transports and gliders.

It was supported by 3000 sorties of Allied aircraft which loosed a 4000-ton bomb shower on German communications. German air force opposition was smothered.

Eisenhower's communique announced pockets of resistance on the outskirts of Aachen had been mopped up and that the fighting had been carried well into the city.

Finns to Declare War on Germany

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 18 (AP) — A formal Finnish declaration of war against Germany appeared imminent today as Finnish fury mounted against German troops who wantonly burned villages and farms as they withdrew into northern Finland. A declaration of war against Germany is one of the demands Russia is said to have made upon Finland as the price of peace with the Soviet Union.

Two Finnish brigades and Russian troops are fighting the Germans in northern Finland, where the Nazi-set fires blazed, Finnish advices said.

Gunnar Mullern, Swedish correspondent, said the Germans were believed to have withdrawn to a line anchored on the north at Enare, about 35 miles from the Norway border and two-thirds of the way across upper Finland and running southeast for 22 miles to Ivalo, then south down the middle of Finland for some 45 miles to Vuotse.

Big VFW Show Goes on Tonight

One of the most dramatic home front spectacles of the war is scheduled at Braves Field tonight under direction of 28 Suffolk County posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The show goes on, rain or shine, at 8 p. m., with fireworks thundering for the first time here since the war began. Proceeds will go to veterans' hospital work and other war effort activities.

Veterans of World War I will re-enact scenes typical of D-Day on the Normandy beachhead, as well as the recapture of Guam and the liberation of Paris.

In a separate show, stars of the stage and screen will put on acts similar to those being given for the armed forces overseas.

Bulgars Killed American Fliers

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (INS)—A number of American fliers captured by the Bulgarians were shot in cold blood, others were brutally beaten, many seriously wounded were left without medical attention for days, and all were half starved and maltreated in violation of the Geneva convention, according to a young American major, commanding all the Allied prisoners of war in Bulgaria, who spoke on an NBC broadcast from Rome.

He had been released and returned from a Bulgarian prison camp aboard an Allied hospital plane.

Interviewed by NBC's Max Hill, the commanding officer said he personally saw one airman killed by guards and had witnessed the shooting of two others.

GREAT FIND

PERSONS who lose legs or arms through amputation may grow substitute limbs. That is the hopeful prediction of Dr. S. Meryl Rose, Smith College zoologist.

The ingenious scientist has found a way to make frogs and other lower vertebrates produce new legs. He thinks he might accomplish as much for man.

Dr. Rose treats cut-off stumps with salt solutions. Closure of wounds by old skin is thus retarded. Embryonic cells soon appear, grow rapidly and eventually form new limb tissues.

If the ambitious experiment succeeds, thousands of crippled veterans of this war will be benefited more than anyone dares to believe.

Perhaps, later on, Dr. Rose might find a way of helping the human race to grow a third set of teeth. Everybody would hail and use that knowledge.

MORE DIVORCES?

DR. CARL R. ROGERS, Ohio State University psychologist, views the postwar matrimonial situation pessimistically.

Citing predictions that as many as 100 war marriages will end in divorce, Dr. Rogers recently said:

"As one man put it, 'the hardest thing for a woman to learn is to put up with a combat man. A woman can't understand. You get to be sort of strangers.'"

We refuse to share this doleful outlook. Wartime marriages, like peacetime marriages, succeed only when the parties concerned work hard to make them succeed.

We have sufficient confidence in the men fighting this war and the women waiting for them to come home to believe that matrimony will continue to be an enduring institution.

Dr. Rogers could well criticize some of our easy divorce laws and the lax and lazy courts that administer them.

As long as harsh words and frowns remain adequate reasons for dissolving marriages, hasty and needless divorces are bound to occur in this country.

VETERANS' LOANS

GOVERNOR SALTONSTALL recently told members of the Co-operative Bank League that he is prepared to use his full emergency powers to set in motion the parts of the G. I. Bill of Rights designed to aid service men in buying and financing homes.

This is a wise decision, and the Governor deserves praise for his wish to give the veterans their privileges without needless delay and red tape.

The next decade should be a period of unprecedented growth and development in Massachusetts.

Thousands of acres of currently useless land can be made available to the lads who are fighting and winning this war.

That will permit them to have small farms on which they will have more security and independence than most of them would ever be able to acquire in congested cities and crowded towns.

220 OPPORTUNITIES

THE State Department of Education has announced 220 University Extension courses.

Among them are many scientific subjects planned primarily to equip men and women for peacetime industrial opportunities.

Emphasis is placed on electronics, chemistry, plastics, aeronautics and radio.

Cultural studies, such as the popular Spanish language and French and Portuguese, are also included.

University Extension courses should be more generally patronized.

No game was ever worth a cap

LINDSAY GORDON.

ANNUALLY about this time some mothers write and ask if I do not think football is a dangerous game and one which a boy of high school age should avoid. When I entered high school my mother asked my father that very same question. In answer he quoted the above lines . . . Sailors, horseplayers, manicurists and people who live in New Orleans are the most superstitious in the United States, in the order named. How about you? When you break a mirror do you worry? Would you conclude a business deal on Friday? Speaking of Friday, the British sailors were so superstitious about anything connected with this day it was greatly affecting the shipping industry. To prove the absurdity of the superstition that Friday was unlucky, the British Admiralty had the keel of a ship laid on Friday, named it Friday, launched it on Friday and had its first sailing on Friday. And so what? The ship Friday left port and neither it nor its crew was ever heard of again.

Tom Moore married Alice Joyce and Owen Moore married Mary Pickford. I forgot who Matt Moore married. Not only that, though in his late fifties, he rides show horses in jumping events . . . Thyra Samter Winslow, Literary lady. WOMEN, ETC.: "It is a suggestion to state 75 per cent of women accept the first man who proposes. The fact is spinsterhood literally drives them to it," so states Mona Henry. Mona is not exactly right. Women under 25 don't usually accept the first proposal in marriage in a spirit of desperation. Those between 25 and 30 are a little more desperate but even they do not snap up the first proposal. Of course, they will settle for less than what they originally intended to accept in the way of a husband. It is the women between 30 and 35, of whom it might be justly said that "75 per cent accept the first man who proposes."

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q. What are the odds against making either 7 or 11 on the first roll of the dice? Two soldiers are asking you. A. 17-to-1 against an 11 on the first roll. Five to one against a 7 on the first roll. Q. – My husband carries 16 golf clubs around the course. What do you think of a man like that? A. He is an escapist from the realities of golf. No golfer worthy of the name needs more than six clubs. It isn't really playing golf when you have a lot of extra clubs, the only purpose of which is to make it easier for you to get out of difficult positions.

LUCKY DAYS: Am asked what day the stargazers say is the lucky one for the Aries born. It is Tuesday. The "lucky days" for those born under other signs are claimed by the astrologers to be as follows: Taurus-Friday, Gemini-Wednesday, Cancer-Monday, Leo-Sunday, Virgo-Wednesday, Libra-Friday, Scorpio-Tuesday, Sagittarius-Thursday, Capricorn-Saturday, Aquarius-Saturday, Pisces-Monday.

LONG DISTANCE: Judge Joseph Sabath of Chicago claims the record for "the longest honeymoon in the United States." The judge has been married 56 years and insists that the honeymoon is not yet over at his house. During his more than a half-century of married bliss, Judge Sabath has in the course of his judicial duties granted more than 65,000 divorces . . . Many men deferred from military service are physically fit enough to serve in an army of occupation. These men could be drafted to relieve the fellows who have been doing the fighting so the latter might return home . . . Surprises me those exploiting sections of the country which they claim to be unusual as places of residence do not place more importance on the locality's water supply. Drinking water can affect growth and mentality of children. It also affects the teeth. From another angle, it affects the quality of the beer made in the vicinity. Water also affects tea. You can have fine tea but bad water will ruin it. Certainly the quality of the water must also affect cooking in general.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1944, King Features Synd., Inc.

VALENTINE, Neb., Sept. 18 – In the morning, they shot a huge bison over on the Buttes beyond town where there is still a great herd of the brutes and brought the carcass down to a temporary Sioux camp just back of the business district where four or five Indians with sharp knives went right to work removing the hide.

Westbrook Pegler

They didn't bleed it any more than it oozed gore naturally from the wound and it was rigid with its legs sticking out stiff before the men began butchering, but that seems to be their way of dressing meat and the Sioux were hanging around and hungering for the feast to follow in the evening after the rodeo.

Some of the white men take a superior view of the Indian's tastes and customs. Indians eat dog, for example, and they eat portions of the buffalo or steer which white men discard but then Frenchmen eat snails and in Scotland a game bird is not considered to be ripe until it has been hung, whole, in the feathers for quite a long time and tripe is a specialty of the house at the Ritz-Carlton in New York.

A GREAT CROWD of the Sioux had come in from the Rosebud Reservation for the rodeo, incidental to Gov. Tom Dewey's campaign visit and a few presuming to speak from knowledge, said the Indians were going to vote for him which is their privilege under the strange conditions governing the lives of the original Americans.

They are subject to the draft, although most of the eligibles volunteered and there were two Indian paratroopers in town on leave wearing service ribbons. But liquor they cannot buy because they are Indians and they live under a trusteeship, established by treaty and are up against a humiliating and discouraging situation.

To be sure, they can leave the reservation and go off to mingle with the white men wherever their interest or curiosity leads them, but in that case they are on their own and ill-equipped to get along. Yet, if they stay on the reservation they are not fully-privileged Americans and if they all should move out and disperse among the white men, generally, they would lose entirely, in a few generations, their tribal and racial identity and, eventually, would be a vanished breed.

If it is true that the majority will vote for Dewey or against Roosevelt, that might be due to their perpetual discontent with a dismal and futureless lot and with the government in power whatever the party or whoever the President, for Dewey has made them no promises and the restrictions are no New Deal innovation.

Back in their history, but not beyond the memory of old Indians who now accept their condition, there were American Lidices which are seldom mentioned, although they must be the subject of bitter reflection and ironic thoughts on the boundless idealism and truculent morality of their masters against today's aggressors and the authors of atrocities in other parts of the world.

THE BUFFALO HIDE came off neat but not good for much but moccasins at this time of year, having only patchy fur, and the carcass was divided up among the tents where the squaws were busy, some of them chopping wood. This was to be a big night in town for the Rosebud Sioux. Then back to the reservation, monotony, poverty and discontent.

Old hands who have done the Indians' story in the past say it is just no use, because they just want to be blanket Indians and roam at will, pitching camps here and there, but with liberal cash allowances or pensions from the government.

And, for a fact, two well-spoken members of the tribal council who attempted to explain their situation and their desires seemed to have no objection to the position of racial inferiority which is accompanied, however, by meagre material benefits and to be willing to settle for nothing more than the right to buy liquor openly, on equality with the white men, and cash pensions forever from the great white father in Washington.

WHITE LEADERS of the district, who also seem bound to vote Republican, had different reasons for their hostility to Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal. The cattlemen are doing very well, to be sure, but you have to sign your name to four or five papers and get a permit to do anything and they think this is a good time to tell the government "get your hands off me and let me alone."

They also hate the Political Action Committee of the CIO.

The Indian seems less concerned about his freedom in a nation which is determined to free other peoples all over the world might destroy him by forcing freedom and full manhood on him.

Hollywood Today

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18—The much-sought-after Academy Award winner, Jennifer Jones, who has had all studios bidding for her, makes her next movie for Hal Wallis. Yes, indeed, over the week-end David Selznick read the script by Ayn Rand, liked it, and told Hal Jennifer was free to start any time. So apparently the trouble with 20th is all settled.

doing nip-ups for he said out of 11 scripts, David had decided on this for Jennifer, with William Dieterle directing. Looks very much as if Messrs. Selznick and Wallis have plans for Joan Fontaine, a Selznick star who has also been loaned to Wallis. I was interested to hear that Ayn Rand, author of "Fountainhead," had prepared the script. Wonder what happened to "Fountainhead" if it is to be filmed?

ALL THOSE meetings Mervyn LeRoy and his uncle-in-law, Jack Warner, have been having mean something. Yes, Merv is moving to Warner Brothers to direct the Arrowhead pictures and to release them through the company that gave him his first big opportunity. I have always thought he had a sneaking fondness for the Warner company, for his first big success was made there. Harry Warner, his father-in-law, always wanted Mervyn to come back, even after he went to M-G-M. But he did well at M-G-M with such pictures as "Random Harvest," "Waterloo Bridge" and others which merited Academy consideration. Before he starts his Warner contract Monsieur LeRoy will complete "The Robe" for Frank Ross at RKO.

THE HECTIC Turhan Bey-Lana Turner romance isn't changing George Waggoner's plan to team Turhan and Susanna Foster. He considers them the most romantic pair on the screen. Before Bey fell hook, line and sinker for Lana he was spending all his free time with Susanna, who, however, seems to be bearing up well. She starts next week with him in "Frisco Sal," a story of the Barbary Coast. Then next year Waggoner again co-stars them in a Technicolor operetta, "Lover's Holiday."

JON HALL TELLS me he has to have a plastic operation on his face and nose before he faces the camera again. I had called him to inquire if it was true he planned to file suit against Tommy Dorsey and Pat Dane, which was the report following the indictment of the Dorseys by the county grand jury. He said at the present he had made no plans for a lawsuit. Frances Langford, he said, leaves again for a three weeks' trip to Canada on the war effort with the Bob Hope company and that seemed to make him more unhappy than even his forthcoming operation.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Paulette Goddard thought she was going to leave on a plane for New York at 4 o'clock. At 5:30 she telephoned the studio: "I am supposed to plane out for New York, but here I sit with four Army wives who are trying to get to their husbands." Seven o'clock she was still there and at 8 o'clock at 1 Finally it was the wee sma' hours when the plane pulled out with Paulette realizing that being a movie star doesn't make a bit of difference in wartime. By the way, Raymond Schindler writes the girl who wrote upon pen letters about Paulette and Burgess Meredith has released.

Moorhead is under contract to M-G-M and seems to be their favorite character actress of the moment. She's in practically every picture.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 — Mme. Frances Perkins, the keen and discerning Secretary of Labor, held an "imponderable" press conference the other day.

Madame Perkins revealed she is having difficulty planning for the postwar period because there are too many "imponderables."

She must find this a great affliction and I only hope she can do something before it becomes chronic.

Mme. Perkins

Madame Perkins, unfortunately, is not done in her travail. She has many fellow sufferers here in Washington. People are being taken down with acute imponderability right and left.

I thought seriously for a time of endowing a bed for victims of imponderosis, as I have named the ailment. But I returned from going through with it because the bed, unquestionably, would become overcrowded and I would be accused of making strange bedfellows.

Seriously, I do not know what afflicted Washington would do without that word "imponderable." It can be used for nearly every emergency, much as officials used to dodge questions by quoting Scriptures.

A great Scripturalist was Ex-Secretary Tom Heflin of Alabama. Heflin was a rabid fundamentalist, and had no use for anyone who failed to measure up to his standard.

He was considerably vexed, therefore, when his son embarked from a whoopee cruise in New York and announced, boisterously, that he was going to call on Ex-Gov. Al Smith. Young Heflin weaved down the gangplank howling:

"Where's Al Smith? Take me to Al Smith!"

Well, there was probably no one in the nation that Senator Heflin thought less of than he did of Smith. Reporters asked him if he could explain his son's seeming aberration, whereupon—without hesitation—Heflin answered:

"An enemy hath done this to me!"

He did not identify the fiendish foe who had filled his offspring with exhilaration—which left the reporters all the more puzzled because young Heflin was looking like a fellow who didn't have an enemy in the world.

MADAME PERKINS apparently prefers to be imponderable. One of the opening questions asked at her press soiree was:

"Will we have to revise the Little Steel wage formula upward after the war?"

"I do not think I can discuss that," replied Madame Perkins. "There are too many imponderables."

The imponderable Mrs. Perkins then announced that unemployment in the country is currently at a low of 700,000. She was asked if this condition could continue after the war.

I will bet you can't guess what she said.

"Too imponderable!"

Madame Perkins also was stricken with imponderability on a matter of recent history. Asked if she had dedicated this poem to the Lady:

"If I wish to know what the future has in store to
"The significant things of life, such as gherkins
"I do not think I will take it up with
"The imponderable Madame Perkins."

IT MAY COMFORT you to know that Senators and their wives have differences, just like other couples.

Sen. Homer T. Bone, of Washington, was putting the finishing touches to his packing he is leaving for San Francisco to be a judge on the ninth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals—when Mrs. Blanche Bone came in.

"Homer," she said, sternly, "where are those book ends?"

"Book ends?" echoed the Senator, trying to look vague. "What book ends?"

"You know very well what book ends," retorted Mrs. Bone. "The ones made from bombed fragments of Westminster Abbey!"

"Not Westminster Abbey," stalled Senator Bone. "The House of Commons."

"Westminster Abbey!" insisted Mrs. Bone. "But skip that—where are they?"

Senator Bone finally confessed he had given them away—to Raphael Bosch, who has been mentioned for the Supreme Court of Puerto Rico.

"Bunk!" snorted Mrs. Bone and left. In an hour she returned with the book ends.

"I made him give them back," she said, triumphantly.

It seems Mrs. Bone felt strongly about the book ends because they were sent to the Senator by Capt. Roy Swanstrom who used to be a clerk in the Senator's office.

"WHO'S GOT A MATCH?" IS THE QUESTION that has become a whole city's cry, and if some genius can explain the situation we might get an inkling to the explanation for shortages that seem, for no obvious reason, to break out sectionally under the Win-the-War administration . . . HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18 — George Raft, on the set of "Nob Hill," told the story about the girl waiting on a street corner to meet her husband. While waiting, her husband's best friend passed by, saw her, and stopped to speak. "What are you doing here?" he asked.

She replied angrily, "I've been waiting on this corner for a couple of hours for Bill. He hasn't shown up yet."

George Raft

The friend, being a true pal of Bill's, suggested that they go into a nearby bar for a drink, and when they got out Bill would probably be there waiting for her. They came out about an hour later, but still no Bill.

"There's no use waiting any longer," said the pal. "I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll drive you home." When they got there, she invited him to stay for dinner. She went into the kitchen and prepared the meal.

They had dinner, a few more drinks, and sat on the couch, waiting for Bill. The pal began to get a little nervous. Here it was, getting on in the night, and Bill was apt to come in any minute now and find his best friend with his wife.

Another hour and a half passed. The wife and the best friend had had more drinks and conversation. They became more friendly; he became more nervous. The phone rang, and the pal practically leaped from the couch. The wife got up from the couch, walked into the next room, answered the phone, returned and said to the best pal: "You don't have to be nervous any more. That was Bill. He's at the club with you playing gin rummy."

TYPICALLY HOLLYWOOD is the incident about Helen Deutsch and the original story that she sold to Metro for $100,000. Since then, producers and agents and everyone else in town have been giving producers and agents and everyone else in town the "lowdown" on the real selling price of the story. One fellow would whisper to another, "You don't really believe she received that much, do you? Confidentially, and I got it on the best authority, they paid her only $75,000."

Then someone else would whisper, "Confidentially, and I got it on the best authority she got only $50,000 for the story." The price continued to go down until a friend met her and said: "Say, Helen, I heard you didn't sell a story."

Plane Crash Probed; 7 Killed

GRANBY, Sept. 18—Army authorities today probed the crash of a bomber which plunged into swampy woodlands two miles north of Westover Field, killing two officers and five enlisted men.

New Blue Point Values in Effect

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (INS)—Point values on virtually all items remaining on the processed foods ration list were sharply increased today as OPA removed 33 products, including vegetables, from rationing.

The new point values, for the period ending Sept. 30, apply to canned and bottled fruits, sour fruit and vegetable juices, canned tomatoes, catsup and chili sauce.

OPA Administrator Chester Bowles explained that point values were posted because of the increase in point-buying power stemming from the ration removal order. Bowles pointed out that housewives still retain 50 points per month per person, but they must spend them on a few items.

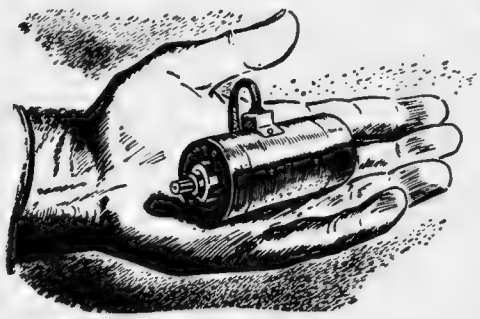
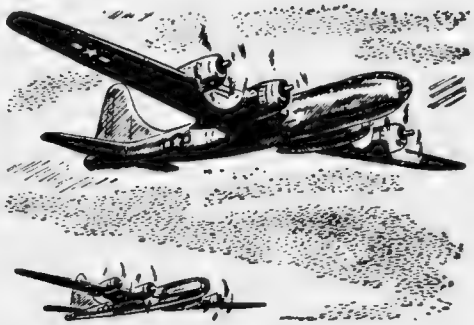
STRANGE JOBS FOR ELECTRIC MOTORS

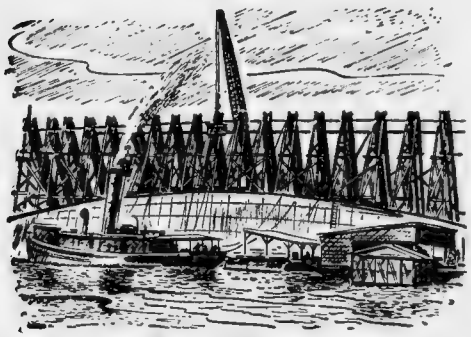
Cannon shoots through doughnut motor. In the nose of this fighter plane, right in the middle of the G-E motor that feathers the propeller, is a 37-mm. cannon. Building a motor with a hole where the shaft ought to be was a brain twister, but G-E engineers solved this problem with an electric motor shaped like a doughnut.



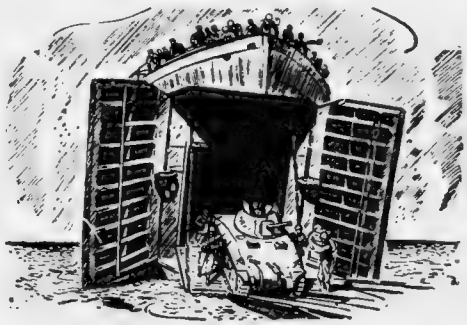
This Tom Thumb motor loads the guns on our bombers and fighters. Other electric motors raise and lower wheels, open bomb bay doors. War requires more than 40,000 different motor models, keeping G-E research and engineering men busy.



B-29 Superfortress. 150 electric motors act as muscles beneath the sleek exterior of the B-29. They power, among other things, the gun turrets in the G-E designed fire-control system that arms the Superfort against enemy attacks.



Turning a battleship over. 21 G-E motors teamed up for a 21-thousand-ton pull to turn the capsized Oklahoma right side up at Pearl Harbor. Electric motors see action on every front, in weapons, and in tools to repair them in the field.



Push-button doormen for LST's. Push a button, and out pops a tank. It's not quite that simple, but the doors and ramp on an LST are opened, at the push of a button, by electric motors. On an LST, there are 140 electric motors.

• General Electric produced 7 million horsepower of electric motors in 1943.
• More than 2 million G-E electric motors will join the armed services this year.

Care of Late Crops Brings Extra Yield

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head, Market Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School, and Director, Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser demonstration garden on Boston Common.

Although it is past the middle of September, there still are a number of important tasks to be done on victory gardens if gardeners expect to get that additional 15 per cent production which is possible with good care of late crops. Our demonstration garden now shows what can be expected of proper planning.

The following jobs must be done this week:

1—Dust cabbage and broccoli again to control the green worm. This insect is still doing a lot of damage to V-Garden crops. Recent rains, plus cultivation, will help the crops to grow away from some of this damage.

2—Be sure to thin your late purple top turnips if you have not already done so. If grown fast in late fall these roots have fine quality and flavor. They do not retain their quality too well in storage so should be left out in the garden as long as possible.

3—Trim off lower leaves of tomatoes. Many trellised tomato plants are still producing well. This is true of our plants on the Common.

4—Swiss Chard has continued to produce. If you have not been able to keep up with it I would suggest cutting it back severely so as to get some good clean young growth for late fall. This crop is hardy and with a little protection will produce until late November.

5—Use second and third plantings of beets before they get too large. Overgrown beets are not good for storage.

6—Late bush beans will develop after rains. The size of pods on these late beans will not get as large, and should be picked before they get tough.

7—If you did not have late beet greens, this year, make a note to sow some seed about the middle of August next year. We have given away some fine greens during the past week.

8—Cultivate and hoe around these late crops. Working the soil and weeding seems to encourage growth

Tomatoes are still plentiful for canning, and the quality is good. They should be picked before they crack too badly. The recent rains may cause bad cracking.

MEN, WOMEN OVER 40
RUNDOWN, LISTLESS?
GET NEW PEP, VIM
END THAT TIRED FEELING

Why be tired, nervous, old at 40, just because your body is not getting a sufficient daily amount of Iron, Iodine and Thiamine. Many people have that "run down" feeling and never realize that an extra supply of these much needed elements may be just what they need. Check up on yourself now! Do you have all the energy and endurance you want or are you one of those who may need a little extra help by adding Iron, Iodine and Thiamine to your diet.

OLD AT 40-50-60?
Old age arrives when the body no longer builds new cells to replace old cells as fast as they wear out. Iron and Iodine, important cell building factors, help fight the onset of OLD AGE.

Nervous, Irritable?
Are ragged jumpy nerves making you irritable, cross and out of sorts with yourself? High tension and nervousness may be due to a deficiency of Thiamine and Iodine. Don't overlook these factors when your "nerves" are on edge.

PALE, LISTLESS?
Radiant, robust, energetic health that makes life really worth while is priceless. If you are pale, listless, and all in, an added supply of Iron, Iodine and may be just what you need.

WEAK, TIRED?
A mineral starved body, a body starved for Iron and Iodine, weakens quickly and tires easily. You must get enough Iron and Iodine for strength with Vim, Pep and Vitality.

IRON-IODINE THIAMINE

Hiran is a fine combination of Iron and Iodine plus Thiamine that helps many people enjoy better health as it helps overcome or guards against a deficiency of these important essentials. No matter what your work may be, you must get enough Iron or you cannot have normal strength, energy and endurance

TEST WITHOUT RISK: Use all the tablets, according to directions, in a bottle of Hiran. If you do not feel better generally, with more energy and vitality, this test is without cost . . . your money will be refunded.

"Going to blow it all in, Johnny?"

JOHNNY: "Hello there, Uncle Bill. Say, can't I have a little fun with it?"

UNCLE BILL: "Fun? Listen—tossing your money around in wartime is no fun for anyone!"

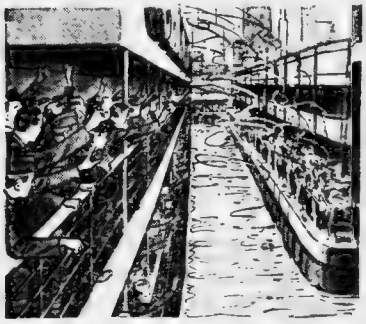
"I remember when I was in the last war. Your Aunt Helen used to write me how prices had gone sky high because everyone was earning big money and buying up everything in sight. They didn't seem to realize that the more they spent, the less they got in return.

"Prices went up and up just like at an auction—and your Aunt Helen could hardly make ends meet. I didn't think that was fair to our soldiers' families then, and I wouldn't like to see it happen again today. I know that you wouldn't either.



"Besides giving us a royal welcome home, I wish that everyone had been more sensible about their war money. I'm too old to wear a uniform in this war, but I'm not too old to fight rising prices. Everyone can get in that fight."

"And Johnny, if I had only had the opportunity that you have right now. Why, I might be a boss today. A friend of mine salted away every cent he could during the last war and had enough afterwards to set up as a contractor."

UNCLE BILL: "Johnny, why not do as our government says—put away every cent you can into War Bonds, life insurance and a savings account."

JOHNNY: "I was only kidding, Uncle Bill—I'm on my way to the War Bond window right now."

Royal Brand of Cosmetics You'll Love

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

IT ISN'T VERY OFTEN that busy department store executives take time out from crowded war-punctuated schedules to launch a new cosmetic line with a delightful luncheon . . . with beauty editors et al as special guests. It's got to be something pretty special, believe me.

Burdened men that they are . . . they usually leave the fanfare and trumpeting of new items to routine store channels. But . . . these new creams, lotions and perfumes are so distinctive . . . sport such a royal background and intriguingly fascinating heritage . . . that even prosaic, figure-minded store magnates can be carried away with the glamour of it all.

And, frankly, it is quite a feather in their cap to have plucked such a cosmetic plum for their sole local distribution . . . which up to now was only available to New York salon customers . . . those ultra-ultra ladies who spend all out doors for their loveliness. And, now this line of custom-ized cosmetics . . . honest-to-goodness hand-made, hand-whipped creams and lotions . . . which come to our modern era from the extravagantly luxuriant days of King Louis XV of France . . . is within the purse reach of every beauty-minded woman.

HONEY IS CHIEF INGREDIENT

The creator of this exclusive, yet inexpensively priced line, is a European personality . . . a direct descendant of the royal Italian house of the Borgias . . . who came to this country in 1930 with a book of cosmetic formulae as one of her cherished heir-looms. Handed down to her through the French side of the family . . . the book, a museum piece, was the creative genius of the royal perfumer in the court of King Louis.

What the creator started out to do as a hobby has now become a business . . . and from a small circle of exclusive friends . . . a large clientel of beauty seekers has developed. Each package bears her family crest . . . a royal insignia trademarking the 300-year-background of the product. These cosmetics are different in that honey . . . which has healing properties especially beneficial to skin and tissue . . . is the chief ingredient. Remember when granny whipped up some oil and honey for your sore throat in kid days?

The night cream . . . and you can almost taste the honey in it . . . is a honey of skin youth re-tainer . . . and I'll be glad to tell the name and where to buy these cosmetics if you phone th Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ACCENTUATING THE CHINESE love of color and simplicity . . . this Hansen Bang original of mandarin blue tweed features the new wide smooth molded shoulders and deep armholes for greater freedom to the form-fitted jacket. Note the new turned back cuff button-trimmed for added detail . . . and the same colored felt hat with a bandeau of sequins for complete symphony.—R. M.

THREE HUNDREDS YEARS AGO the reigning beauties of the court of King Louis XV of France had a court perfumer to whip up creams and lotions to perpetuate their beauty . . . but today his formulae has been given a modern touch in hand-made customized cosmetics sponsored by his descendant. Brand new to Boston, these products will help you achieve facial charm comparable to the loveliness of Anita Colby's candlelight complexion.

My Day

-:- -:-

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Sunday. The trip down by the night train from Quebec was so peaceful, as far as we were concerned, that I was appalled when we reached Washington on Friday morning to see the damage that the hurricane had brought about. Large trees in the square lay uprooted, and the havoc was pitiful.

Trees always seem to me to have personality, and when a big one is blown over you almost feel that it must have hurt the spirit within the tree. Especially ignoble must it seem to have your branches down in the dust, and, in this case, the pavements.

IN LONG ISLAND, apparently, not only trees suffered, but houses and telephone and electric wires were all put out of commission. Our daughter-in-law, Anna, had to be reached by telephone, and when I finally got her late afternoon I found that she and the children were not only without a telephone, but also with no means of cooking.

Long ago I discovered that one could get along very nicely in primitive conditions, but to be primitive surrounded by modern inventions is extremely difficult. Our ancestors kept their milk and butter down the well, but now when the electric ice-box goes off there is no well to keep things cool! Like many of her neighbors, my daughter-in-law spent the afternoon trying to find enough ice to keep the children's milk from going sour.

Fortunately, her house was unhurt, and my real sympathy went to another young woman of my acquaintance whose house, a summer cottage, was completely flattened by the gale. Her children luckily were not there at the time, but she still has not been able to find out whether any of her belongings were salvaged.

ON SATURDAY I did a little shopping and got back here early in the afternoon. Little damage was done here, except for some branches that were blown down in the woods.

That was an extraordinary courageous thing those young scientists did when they flew straight into the teeth of the storm to find out about the currents of wind. Their exploit will make it safer for fliers in the future, but I always marvel at the courage which makes people willingly risk their lives to ascertain scientific facts.

Lamb Ideal Dish for Fall

By MARTHA LEE

ROAST LEG OF LAMB and broiled lamb chops are a reality, for this fall there is an ample supply of two intermediate grades of lamb. To be sure, cuts from these grades are smaller than those from higher grades, but they make delicious eating.

Lamb now on the market is suitable to roasting, broiling, braising, or stewing. Roast a leg of lamb according to all your best knowledge—fat side up in an open roasting pan in a 325 deg. F. oven. Allow about 30 minutes to the pound. Leave the thin paperlike covering or "fell" on for faster and better toasting.

Loin and rib chops are smaller than we're used to, but when cut extra thick, they furnish plenty of meat. Allow two of these chops to the serving. They will have to be broiled longer, about 10 to 15 minutes on each side.

Cushion shoulder of lamb is made by removing the bone from a shoulder cut and sewing the edges together to form a pocket for bread and onion stuffing, rice stuffing or rich sausage stuffing. A rolled shoulder roast is boneless and just the right size for a small family.

Since lamb is plentiful, try some of these tested recipes for good eating.

CUSHION SHOULDER ROAST WITH APRICOT STUFFING

1 cushion shoulder
½ minced onion
2 tbsp. melted butter or margarine
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped dried apricots
2 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. poultry seasoning
1 tbsp. hot water

Have cushion style shoulder prepared at market, with one side open for inserting stuffing. Mix stuffing ingredients and put in pocket of roast. Sew open edges together. Place on rack in open roasting pan and roast in 325 deg. F. oven for 40 minutes per pound. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

BRAISED LAMB CHOPS

½ lamb shoulder chops
Lard for browning
Salt and pepper
½ lemon slices
4 thin slices onion
4 green pepper rings
½ cup tomato juice

Brown shoulder chops well in hot lard. Top each chop with a slice of lemon, slice of onion and slice of green pepper. Add tomato juice. Cover and cook slowly for 40 to 45 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

LAMB LOAF

1½ lbs. ground Lamb
1 cup bread crumbs
2 tbsp. chopped onion
3 tbsp. chopped green pepper
1½ tsp. salt ¼ tsp. pepper
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup milk 3 strips bacon

Mix egg, milk, crumbs, onion, green pepper and seasoning with ground lamb. Press into baking dish. Lay strips of bacon on top. Bake in 325 deg. F. oven for 1½ hours. Makes 6 servings.

LAMB CHOP CASSEROLE

12 small lamb chops
6 small tomatoes, peeled
6 small apples, peeled and cored
6 onions, peeled
18 raw potato balls
Boiling water

Pan-brod lamb chops until lightly browned, place 2 chops, 1 tomato, 1 apple, 1 onion and 3 potato balls in each of 6 heated individual casseroles. Add about 3 tablespoons water to each casserole, cover and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 45 minutes. 6 servings.

Wrapped-Up Coats Again

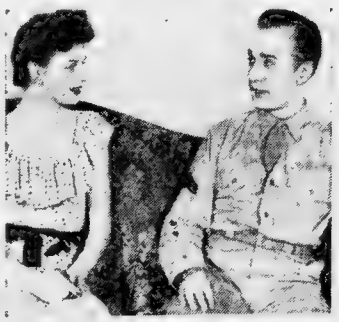
By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE BIG TIME designers have a passion for well wrapped-up coats this Fall. What Mrs. and Miss America are going to say about these things remains to be seen. In the Twenties the coat that you held shut with the hand-clutch system was the rage, and something very like this is what is new for this season. Some full length coats are made to be held shut by the lady inside them, but mostly it is the knee-length coat that gets this kind of closing.

So you can see exactly what such wrap looks like, Miss Dulin has sketched a popular model. This is a coat of storm gray velvety wool, and as you see it is held closed by wrapping it around in the front. It has a very small collar and the fur, luxurious black fox, is concentrated at the hem and on the cuffs of the sleeves.

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES



QUESTION AND ANSWERS! Don't assume that the service man on leave wants to talk "shop" all the time. The chances are he wants to forget about it for a while, just as one tries to forget business while on vacation. Plying him with questions about his post, the men he has met, his duties, hours, recreation, etc., is not the way to entertain him.

Biggest Scrap Drive Pushed

With salvage officials hopeful of smashing all previous records, Boston's biggest salvage drive got under way today as city trucks collected waste paper and scrap tin in the first five wards of the city—East Boston, Charlestown, the North, West and South Ends, and the two Back Bay wards.

War Production Board officials announced that the need for waste paper is greater now than ever. The shortage is so acute that Boston Salvage Director George G. Hyland has arranged to have Boston's reclaimed paper delivered in freight cars to paper mills within 24 hours after it is picked up from homes and stores here.

Salvage trucks will make collections daily through Friday in Boston's five-day drive.

Tomorrow's pickups are scheduled in the two South Boston wards and Wards 8, 9 and 10 of Roxbury. Wednesday, Wards 11 and 12 of Roxbury and Wards 13 and 14 of Dorchester will be canvassed. Collections will be made Thursday in Wards 15 to 18, and on Friday the campaign will end with collections in Wards 19 to 22.

In addition to the 22 war bonds offered by the Boston Salvage Committee to waste paper contributors to stimulate salvage, Aleppo Temple Shriners are offering 220 pairs of choice seats for the Hamid-Morton circus which opens an eight-day run at the Boston Garden next Monday.

One $25 war bond and 10 pairs of circus tickets will be awarded to paper donors in each ward on the basis of drawings by the salvage committee.

Coincident with the waste paper drive, WPB officials issued an appeal to householders in 26 cities and towns of metropolitan Boston to participate 100 per cent in this week's collection of tin cans.

SCRAP COLLECTIONS

Tomorrow—Boston, Wards 6 through 10, paper and tin, curb; Belmont, paper, curb; Needham, District 2, paper and tin curb; Revere Ward 5, paper and tin curb.

Wednesday—Boston, Wards 11 through 14, paper and tin, curb; Belmont, paper, curb; Needham, District 3, paper and tin curb; Revere, Ward 3, paper and tin, curb.

All the operations were carried out without loss, the air ministry said.

It soitanly wuz a pleasura tha way you took it without a beef . . . Me soldier friend and baker, Louis Forcina, who's been in many of the large countries, sez he ran into a hut with a "Izzy Ort's Place" sign hanging on it. Sez all the service fellers he ran into over there that had ever bin in Boston knew about me Essex Street spot, whitch, I will admit, is one big favorite with our boys and gals in uniform, and defense workers, too. One of the boys asked Louis if yers trooly wuz still handin' out those swell Xmas feeds . . . he got the right answer. Louis also brought back some money signed by service men, from a lot of the fighting areas and other spots. Sum of the money had signatures of movie stars who he ran into on their tours, such as Joe E. Brown and others, too. Yep, and Louis Forcina sez he gotta big kick out ov bakin' pie fer Pat O'Brien, in person. A reception will follow at the Curtis summer home on Blossom lane.

Three of Polly's sisters, Catherine, Laura and Louisa, will be in the wedding party. The fourth, Mrs. John A. Sweetser, is in the WAVES, stationed at San Diego, Cal. Eight other brides maids will precede the pretty blonde bride down the aisle. They are her cousins, Mrs. David Yandell and Mary Dickey of New York; Mrs. Robert Brown, Mrs. Richard Jackson, Martha Weeks, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Sinclair Weeks, Nancy Eliot, Margaret Young and Mrs. Stuart Hunter.

Polly Curtis

Com. Woodville, son of J. L. Warren Woodville of New Orleans, is a 1936 graduate of Annapolis. Polly is a 1940 debutante, member of the Junior League and Vincent Club and an active worker for the Red Cross Canteen.

Court Holds Dad In Slaying of 4

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Demetrakopoulos, 43-year-old machinist whose wife and two children were found slain in their apartment, was arraigned and held without bail on a homicide charge in Queens felony court.

The slayings were discovered when police went to the apartment to arrest the machinist in connection with the killing of his uncle, Peter Takis, a farmer living near New Paltz, N. Y.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Albert Short said Demetrakopoulos admitted he killed his wife and uncle, but that the accused his wife of killing the children, Anne, 13, and Helen, five, by opening jets of a kitchen gas stove.

Demetrakopoulos related, Short said, there had been family trouble since last January when his wife accused Takis of assaulting her while she was staying at the farm.

Ted, Dom, Pesky in Service Until 1946

By JACK CONWAY

TED WILLIAMS, Dom DiMaggio, Johnny Pesky and other Red Sox stars who are in the Navy or Marine corps are unlikely to return to big league baseball before 1946 at the earliest, according to high Navy sources in Washington . . . Admiral Jacobson, in charge of Navy personnel, has made it clear that no men under 38 years of age will be given their discharges from service other than for physical disabilities until Japan has been crushed. There will later be a period of occupation of Japan and of strategic islands where the younger men in the Navy will be kept very much on the job.

Ball players in the Army have a better chance of returning to the majors in 1945 than any of the stars in the Navy. Once Germany is defeated, it is expected there will be a demobilization of part of the huge Army which Uncle Sam has organized to beat the Axis. It is likely that many ball players will be among those soldiers to receive discharges.

Ted Williams

Ball players with families and long overseas records will receive priorities in getting out of service.

While the Army will play an important part in the ultimate defeat of Japan, the Navy and the Air Corps will probably take the principal roles in the gigantic battles still to come in the Far East.

There will also be the task of getting fighting personnel from the European to the Pacific area of war after Hitler is beaten, and the Navy will play an important part in this vast movement of fighting forces.

Bob Feller, brilliant Cleveland pitcher, is also in the Navy, and as a result he will remain in service until a complete Allied victory has been secured.

With so many Sox stars in the Navy, it is unlikely that Tom Yawkey will realize his dream of winning an American League pennant before 1946 or 1947 at the earliest.

Lost '44 Opportunity

THE RED SOX lost their greatest opportunity to win a pennant this year. The calling of Tex Hughson, Bobby Doerr and Hal Wagner by the armed forces took the props from under the Sox and caused them to fade out of the pennant race.

Injuries to Pete Fox and Leon Culberson added to the woes of Joe Cronin. The Sox were never a ball club that played beyond its natural ability when it encountered difficulties.

With the Browns, Yanks and Tigers having numerous bad days, the Sox were presented with many golden opportunities to take command in the hectic American League pennant race, but they refused to accept these chances to move ahead.

THERE HAS been great pressure on Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouser, crack Detroit pitchers. They have had to carry a heavy burden, and it is natural that they occasionally have poor days.

Pitchers like Trout and Newhouser are baseball gems, and over a period of time they will win more than their share of ball games.

Tex Hughson was in the same class with Trout and Newhouser. It was silly to think that Rex Cecil and Clem Driesewerd, Coast leaguers, could take over the big job left by Hughson. If Tex, with a record of 18 wins and five losses, had remained with the Sox, the club would probably be leading the league despite the later losses of Doerr and Wagner.

Hughson's type of pitcher can always be put into the box in a key ball game where victory moves a club to the front, and takes some of the fire out of the opposition. This kind of flinger does his best work when the big chips are down.

Going back through big league history one finds that most great clubs had two to four top pitchers. A three-pitcher combination like Rudolph, James and Tyler of the 1914 Braves was unbeatable.

The Sox of pennant winning days always had three to five class pitchers. Babe Ruth was a member of such a group the year the Sox won a world series from the Cubs with Ed Barrow as their manager. In one world's series game, Ruth played left field, first base and did some pitching. The Babe was a mighty handy man to have around in a ball club.

Denied Full Credit

RUTH OFTEN told this writer he was never given proper credit for his marvelous ability as a pitcher. Ruth could have lasted as a pitcher much longer than he did if he had not such a keen desire to be in the ball game every day so that he could take a cut at the agate.

One year during a Sox training period at Tampa, Fla., Ruth told Ed Barrow he could not pitch on account of a lame arm. The Babe was placed in left field. With a runner on second, the ball was hit to left field. Ruth came in quickly, picked up the ball and threw it on a line to the catcher. In his eagerness to get the base runner, Ruth had forgotten all about his so-called lame arm.

Ruth was the perfect ball player. He never made a wrong play in his entire career, as Hughey Duffy frequently pointed out. He did things right on the diamond from instinct.

I consider Ruth a greater batter than Ty Cobb, Larry Lajoie, Sam Crawford and some of the other greats of other years. I thought he was the best batter I would ever see until Ted Williams came to the front. I believe Ted is an even more natural hitter than Ruth. The "Kid" does everything right at the plate.

By JOE CASHMAN

EN ROUTE TO CLEVELAND, Sept. 18—The Red Sox are headed West today to finish up their season in first, second, third or fourth place.

And are they glad to get away from the East until another season rolls around!

They would have the pennant clinched right now if they could have played .500 ball in the towns they visited along the Atlantic seaboard.

They are in fourth place, four games behind the Detroit leaders, because out of 33 games played in New York, Philadelphia and Washington they gained but 11 victories, which is a very poor tail-end .333 pace.

Some days back they finished up with 3-8 cards in New York, where reside the champion Yankees, and in Philadelphia, where hang out the second division Athletics.

They still had a chance to finish in front in Washington when the opened a three-game engagement in the Capital last Friday night. They arrived with four wins and four losses to show for previous efforts along the banks of the Potomac.

But the best they could do was take one of the three tilts, and they had to author an eight-run inning, their largest of the year, to do that well.

Thus their flag chances are almost too slim to be seen as they head into the wide open spaces for three games with the Cleveland Indians, four games with the Detroit Tigers, three games with the St. Louis Browns, and four games with the Chicago White Sox, in the order named.

They are now four games behind the pace-setting Tigers; 3½ games behind the second place St. Louis Browns and two games behind the third place Yankees.

SOX STRONG IN WEST

...rt, heavy as the odds seem to be against them, they're entitled to still have hope in view of their past performances in the west.

In contrast to their wretched record on the road in the east, they captured 17 out of 30 games to date out this way.

They have 5-2 margins over the Tigers and White Sox, have held their own with the Browns and trail only the Indians, against whom they'll square off tomorrow night.

So they're not out of it yet; certainly not out of the struggle for third and second place.

There's no denying, though, that the two setbacks in Washington hurt both athletically and psychologically.

Especially the Sunday 7-6 setback.

This game went out the window when the lowly Nats scored six runs off Joe Bowman in the second stanza. And not a run would have scored had not Jimmy Bucher messed up a double play ball.

That rally by the Solons left the Hose trailing by four runs.

They roared back to chase Dutch Leonard to the showers under a three-run barrage in the third.

But they couldn't get any closer than that.

Wild Grid Pro Start

The National Football League was off to a rowdy, brawling start. With only one game in the regular schedule played, a new all-time league record for penalties was chalked up. The Brooklyn Tigers drew 21 penalties for a total of 165 yards, meantime losing 13 to 7, to the Green Bay Packers at West Allis, Wis.

Three of the Tigers were banished, Bob Masterson, George Smith and Cecil Johnson. Ade Schwammel, left end for the Packers, who mixed it up with Masterson in the fourth quarter, accompanied Bob to the sidelines.

The Packers themselves drew nine penalties for 84 yards but their infractions were far overshadowed by the Tigers'.

Don Hutson, veteran Packer, scored in his 36th consecutive game when he caught a 12-yard pass and ran for 12 more for a touchdown. He kicked his 33rd point after touchdown in a row and tilted that to 34 in the third quarter after Lou Brock ran 17 yards for another touchdown.

Other games were exhibitions. The champion Bears came from behind to whip the Giants, 20 to 10, in Buffalo.

The Philadelphia Eagles defeated the Detroit Lions, 27 to 7, at Detroit in another exhibition. The Cleveland Rams whipped the Sampson Naval Training Station, 26 to 12 before a crowd made up of naval recruits.

B. C. Impressed by Harvard's Ability

Moody Sarno didn't have to urge his Boston College squad to greater efforts today. Most of the boys had seen Harvard's classy informals vanquish Tufts on the week-end and were visibly impressed.

"We've got plenty to do before Oct. 7," they admitted. That is the date they open their schedule against the Crimson, no doubt before a packed stadium.

"Weren't Jenkins and Cowen great?" the boys continued. "And Sweeney at tackle. Tufts' spinners never worked while he was in the line."

And so it went. All were agreed Henry Lamar's informals are a much better outfit than that of '43, when BC and Harvard played their memorable 6-6 game.

Sarno's squad lacks Harvard's experience. Whereas Garrity, Geeson, Perkins, Sweeney, Davis, Mroz and Co., all saw service last year, BC has a freshman eleven with the exceptions of Center Donelan and Guard Baleyko.

The other regulars—Ends Mackiewicz and Callahan, Tackles Lawlor and Barrett, Left Guard Keough, Backs Cronin, Elliott, Carney and Casey—were in high school a year ago.

TUFTS-HARVARD REVIEW: Marvin Jenkins not only ran for Tufts last spring but was on their jayvee football squad last fall. "How did I ever miss you?" asked Manly in amazement after the game. "I was rotten then," Jenkins said modestly. The well-built flier is an all-round athlete from Pekin, Ill. He's a top-notch hurdler and runs the highs in 15.3. "I planned to go to U. of Illinois if the war hadn't intervened," he said. What a running mate he would have made for Buddy Young . . . The passing of Tufts' George "Tubby" Feldman was all the more remarkable when it is considered he was rushed all afternoon. But why didn't Harvard tackle him instead of swarming around him like bees? . . . Feldman not only passed like Sammy Baugh but stopped both Cowen and Jenkins when they were about to break away for touchdown runs . . . Press coop spotters liked McClain, Kearns and Billups of Tufts . . . Neither Rautenberg nor Brown made a bad pass from center, something rare in an opening game . . . "We learned a lot," said Manly sadly. The Armistice Day return match between Harvard and Tufts should be a rip-snorter . . . "Harvard's looping line ruined our running game," Tufts' linemen admitted . . . Glenn Schultz, Jenkins' replacement, is said to be even faster than Jenkins. If so, he could challenge Gunder Hagg.

Early Start Booked For Braves Today

By BILL GRIMES

Manager Leo Durocher and his Brooklyn Dodgers will bid a fond adieu to the Braves after today's engagement at the Allston Wigwam.

On the National League schedule the Braves and the Dodgers have open dates today and tomorrow. The Durochermen had signed to play an exhibition game today at Kingston, N. Y. But, when the second game of Thursday's twin bill was washed out at Ebbetts Field, Pres. Ford Frick ordered the postponed game to be played here.

Due to the fact that the Veterans of Foreign Wars had leased Braves Field to stage an exhibition of fireworks, Pres. Bob Quinn ordered that the game start at 1:45.

Manager Bob Coleman will send Large John Hutchings to the hilltop for the final game with the Dodgers. Although he hasn't exactly set the league on fire since he returned from Indianapolis, Large John is a far better pitcher than he was when Casey Stengel shipped him to the American Association.

He was a "chucker" when he was with the Braves in 1941, but since his return he has shown that now he knows how to pitch. Moreover, he has developed a screw ball and also a slider which have helped him.

BLAZING BEN TWIRLS

Blazing Ben Chapman, who played the outfield for various American League clubs for more than a decade, went down to the minor, saw the light and returned to the big time as a pitcher, will make his third appearance of the season on the mound against the Braves. "Chappie" has a record of three wins and two defeats. Two of his victories were over the Braves; the Phillies were his other victim.

For the second day in a row, the Braves and Dodgers split a twin bill. Tobin's win moved the Colonels into sixth place but the setback suffered by Al Javery dropped them into the cellar.

Wild throws by "Whitey" Wietelmann and Dee Phillips were mainly responsible for Javery's 19th defeat of the year. They gave the Dodgers two runs.

Jim Tobin turned in his 17th win and his fifth shutout yesterday when he beat the Dodgers 3 to 0. "Tobe" gave up only four hits.

Rock Imports Classy Horses

SALEM, N. H., Sept. 18 Lou Smith, of Rockingham Park, who sweetened up the summer season by importing fresh horses from Delaware Park to New England, will use the same successful recipe when the Old Rock opens her gates for her 42-day autumn meeting which starts two weeks hence, Oct. 2.

Announcement was made today that more than 100 thoroughbreds from the Middle West, headed by the powerful Dearborn Stable and its handicap star, Nelson Dunstan, now are en route to Rockingham Park to make the welkin ring and assure the turf fans of a highly attractive fall season.

The Dearborn Stable, trained by Homer E. Stephens, includes in its roster 15 thoroughbreds. In addition to Nelson Dunstan, a stake winner at Detroit, there are also such well-known handicap horses in the string as Samborombon and Spy Snare, and such thoroughbreds of allowance stature as Alex Boy, Restriction, Miss Mary Jo, Hard Pone, St. Dismas, War Liberator, Miss Donna Mae, and Miss Dearborn.

Safety Wins Game For Salem Eleven

A Lowell High safety in the third quarter proved to be the winning margin for Salem High's eleven, 2-0, in the season's opener at Bertram Field, Salem, before 5000 fans yesterday.

Late in the third frame, Dahlquist, Lowell fullback, let a bad pass from center fall into the end zone. He picked up the pigskin but was hemmed in and tackled by Smith and Dionne in the end zone for a safety.

Melrose-Medford Heads School Slate

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Schoolboy football served the fans an appetiser this past week and with scattered opening games, but next Saturday they'll get their first complete course in gridiron dishes as the race for the mythical state championship, as well as class honors, gets underway in full seriousness.

Of course, there'll be some holding off their seasonal debuts for another week but, for the most part, the schoolboys will again begin to fill the gap left by wartime riddled college elevens.

As was the case last fall, the spotlight on the sports stage will be turned on the Melrose-Medford contest, to be played at Gillis Field, Medford, this season—and another sterling battle between two of the better teams in the state is in promise.

Melrose edged through to top honors last year to go on to a joint hold on the state crown as Coach Dave Gavin's Red Raiders romped through their second undefeated season.

Apparently, neither team is up to last year's caliber but both should improve as the season progresses. Coach Eddie Pidgeon of the Mustangs has only co-Captain Pete Gerardi, quarterback, to build on while Melrose will need polishing this week—and a lot of hard work—before reaching last year's peak of perfection.

Meanwhile, our other state champion, Waltham, will have its repairmen out in force to repair the hurricane damage to its field in time for the invasion of Rindge Tech. The Technicians held Coach Jack Leary's club to a surprising one-touchdown score last year, but will have to be very lucky to repeat against the Zeno-propelled Watch City eleven in this opener for both teams.

O'Connor Ready For Leo Numa

Eddick O'Connor, clever Irish grappler, will wind up his training tomorrow for his feature battle with Leo Numa, Seattle, topping the wrestling card at the Arena Wednesday night in Promoter Paul Bowser's weekly program.

O'Connor, winner over Ed "Strangler" White in his debut last week, will be up against a much trickier foe in the speedy Numa as he attempts to pave his way to a crack at the world's championship.

Three matches on the supporting card will complete the program. These will pit Jack Clayburne, Roxbury, vs. Marvin Westenberg, former titlist, in the semi-final; George Linehan, Wayland, vs. Kemol Abdel Rahman, New York, in the weekly special, and Dr. John "Drop-Kick" Murphy, Acton osteopath, vs. Count Von Zuppe, Chicago, in the opener.
